Greetings from the Class President
Samantha Mays, Class of 2001
June 15, 2001

Good evening. I am standing here before you, family and friends, as a representative of the class of 2001. This is the day of happiness and rejoicing, for we who sit in front of you are your trend setters, leaders of the future. I'm sure that my fellow graduates are sitting here wondering, "Where has time gone?" Remembering that it was only four years ago when we were freshmen, wandering the halls of the South School, trying to find our classes, while some of us were wandering outside trying to find what modular we were supposed to be in.

We had no idea of what we were in for!

During our four years of high school we have made friends, lost friends, and started a new beginning. This year was that year, of a new beginning. Filled with challenges and understanding. Faced with the challenge of change and having to form our own identity, we as a class understood what it meant to be a Timberwolf.

And as in the words of our principal, Mr. Richard Carty, "change is the law of life, and those who only look to the past or present are certain to miss the future."
